Mrs. R. M. Hughes, Dies At 90; Burial Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha A. Smith Hughes, 90, widow of Robert M. Hughes, Sr., and a well-known resident of Norfolk for the past 64 years, will be held at Christ and St. Luke's Episcopal Church Wednesday at noon. The Rev. Taylor Willis, D. D., rector, will officiate, and burial will be in Elmwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Hughes died yesterday afternoon at her home, 418 Colonial avenue. The body will be taken from the residence to the church.

Long active in Norfolk's church and civic life, she was probably the last surviving charter member of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. She was a member of Christ and St. Luke's Church.

Born in Williamsburg on March 4, 1853, she was the daughter of the late Judge Sydney Smith, a prominent Williamsburg attorney and member of the Virginia Legislature, and Mrs. Virginia Constance Bucktrout Smith. She was educated at Mrs. Cynthia Tucker Coleman's school for young ladies in the old Tucker house in Williamsburg, and at a college in Danville.

She met her husband-to-be at Williamsburg while he was a student at the College of William and Mary. When he obtained his law degree, they were married and settled in Norfolk, where Mr. Hughes commenced a law practice which was to last for more than 50 years and establish him as one of the leading members of the Norfolk and Virginia bar.

Mr. Hughes died January 15, 1940, less than four weeks before the couple would have observed their sixty-first wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Hughes is survived by one son, Robert M. Hughes, Jr., of Norfolk, and one grandson, Robert M. Hughes, III. (Another son, Sydney Hughes, died in 1923). Other survivors include a grand-daughter, Miss Caroline Wright Hughes, also of Norfolk, and a sister, Miss Estelle Smith, of Williamsburg.
